

5 TAROT SPREADS ANYONE CAN START WITH a free mini-guide

The full course "How to Read Tarot for Yourself" — link at the end of this guide

Before you begin

Tarot isn't fortune-telling in the sense of predicting fate — it's a tool for talking with your own intuition. The cards don't decide for you; they help you see a situation from a different angle. You don't need a special "gift" — just a deck and a bit of quiet.

This guide gives you 5 simple spreads to start with. Go slowly, write down how each card makes you feel, and don't be afraid to get it wrong: intuition grows through practice, not theory.

1. Card of the Day

The simplest spread there is. In the morning, before you check the news or your phone, pull one card and ask: "What should I pay attention to today?"

- Shuffle the deck while thinking about the day ahead.
- Draw one card without peeking beforehand.
- Write down your first association — an image, a feeling, a word.
- Only after that, look up the card's meaning.

2. Yes / No

A quick spread for a specific question you can phrase clearly.

- Word your question as precisely as possible: not "what about my job," but "should I change jobs right now."
- Draw one card.
- Upright cards and Major Arcana tend to lean "yes"; reversed cards and lots of Swords lean "no" or "not yet."
- If the answer feels unclear, that's an answer too: the situation hasn't fully formed yet.

3. Past - Present - Future

A classic three-card spread to see the whole arc of a situation.

- Card 1 (left) — what led to the current situation.
- Card 2 (center) — how things stand right now.
- Card 3 (right) — where things are heading if nothing changes.
- Read the cards as one story left to right, not as separate items.

4. What I Need to Know Right Now

A guiding spread for when you feel a vague unease but can't put your finger on a real question.

- Card 1 — what's really going on (even if you haven't noticed).

- Card 2 — what deserves your attention.
- Card 3 — a helpful next step.
- Great as a bedtime ritual or in a reflection journal.

5. Relationship (me - the other person - the bond)

A mini relationship spread — for a partner, a friend, a colleague.

- Card 1 — what I feel and put out.
- Card 2 — what the other person feels and puts out.
- Card 3 — what's happening between you, the dynamic of the bond.
- This spread shows the picture from the outside — it doesn't "read minds." Use it as a prompt for an honest conversation, not a substitute for one.

Bonus: how to choose your first deck

There's no "correct" first deck — only a deck that resonates with you personally. Look for three things when choosing: the Minor Arcana illustrations should be scene-based, not just "3 of Cups, 4 of Cups" — it makes intuitive reading far easier; the deck should feel and look good to you; and finally, trust your first impression — if the art caught your eye, that's already a good sign.

Want to read Tarot with real confidence, not just a cheat sheet?

The full guide "How to Read Tarot for Yourself" covers the meaning of all 78 cards, the suits and court cards, techniques for combining cards, and 7 spreads for different life situations. Grab it via the link in the video description or the profile bio.